Millie Maven, and the Bronze Medallion , by Ted Dekker and Rachelle Dekker is a book that is pretty fun to read. This book is about an orphan girl that escapes the orphanage and goes to an interesting magical school for gifted kids. It's an adventure where a girl learns important lessons about faith and courage.

This book shows discovery, mystery, and even inspiration. This book is a fantasy that is good for ages 8 to 14. It would mostly suit the age of around 10-12. This is the kind of book you would love to get at a library. It could also be a really good gift if you give it to the right person. It is a really good book especially since it is very clear and easy to read.

I like this book mostly because it is so adventurous and shows her life struggles in a superb way. This is a very unique and thoughtful book. I believe that this book should be read by more and more people. You can read it on road trips to be less bored, you can read it in your free time, and you could read it whenever because of how good this book is. Fantasy lovers, this book is ideal for you!
